To whom it may concern,

Although at times stated otherwise in the structure plan, the changes to the Preston market WILL most definitely take away certain cultural, heritage and community aspects of the market. Any industrial changes made to the market will affect cultural, heritage and community aspects of the market. Let's not turn a blind eye. The market is a fluid environment that allows communities and families to come together in a space that has had an ongoing charm for decades. Under area 4. Precinct issues and opportunities the plan states "some of those matters will not be able to be addressed through planning scheme policies or controls". This statement allows for an understanding that some the retention and protection of the markets cultural, heritage and community aspects will most definitely be dismissed or altered throughout the building process.

For some families and members of the community the market is a home. The interests of these people must be heard and acknowledged. These industrial upgrades simply will, drastically affect lives in a negative light.

Thank you,
