As a Preston resident and visitor of the Preston market, I feel like having such a large number of apartment buildings at the Preston market will be certainly overshadowing and during construction, which would likely take years, would be disturbing and loud to all those who wish to have a nice day out at the market.

It's also worth noting that while public transport is close by, for someone to take the trip to the market using public transport, the cost of the ticket outweighs the savings one would seek to make by going to this market for shopping purposes and walking is not feasible to those who live on the fringes of Preston such as at the junction of high st and plenty road. Finding a suitable parking spot on a market day is already difficult even mid week, and decreasing parking facilities will do more to discourage non-Preston residents who go to take advantage of the cheap produce prices and other various goods they can get here.

I confirm that I have read and agree to the above conditions for making a submission.
