The Preston market holds significant cultural and economical value in the hearts and minds of many Melbournians

The current amendment and plans are inconsistent with character and is severely lacking with its design response

An appropriate decision by council and all relevant planning authorities would seek non development of the existing infrastructure and would opt to upgrade rather than demolish and rebuild

The city should grow and adapt around the Preston market and should be proud to uphold and maintain its integrity and all that it has given to the community and should allow for it to be a shining beacon for generations to come not the other way around

Case in point, the brighton beach houses are promoted globally, but are hardly significant in its cultural value in that they provide nothing other than pretty colours in the backgrounds of people's tourist or wedding pictures.

The Preston market could do the same and also provide food, coffee, retail and cultural significance by way of its existing architecture.

I confirm that I have read and agree to the above conditions for making a submission.
