Hi,

I do not believe that the Arden Precinct plans adequately take into account the needs of existing residents. I am a resident of an apartment block which was subdivided after 2007. As such, I am not entitled to a residential parking permit (ridiculous, I know). It has been relatively okay given the quiet nature of the area, which was one of the original reasons why I chose this area. However, I am concerned that the plans are not doing enough to address the concerns of existing residents. I would feel much more comfortable with the plans if the residential parking permit were extended to include small apartment blocks which were redeveloped after 2007. At the moment, it does seem that amenities are being taken from existing stakeholders with nothing being provided in return.

Best,

Robert de Gille
